The day spent at the university of Utah Thursday was one of entire satisfaction and universal enjoyment among the students of the arademy. The event was by far the greatest that has even been known in the history of the school. We believe that much good is derived from a meet of this kind, and it is hoped that this one will but be a stepping-stone to many more in the future. The royal reception given us by our university friends will not be forgotten; we wish to thank them for their hospitality and assure them that when the visit is returned that nothing will be left undone which would make it a pleasant on.
